(Beverly Hills, CA, February 26, 2020) Al Pacino (The Irishman, Scent of a Woman, The Godfather) will participate in a benefit staged reading of award-winning Vietnam veteran playwright David Rabe's The Basic Training of Pavlo Hummel, at the Wallis Annenberg Center for the Performing Arts, in collaboration with The Shakespeare Center of Los Angeles, on Sunday, March 8, 2020, 7 pm, in The Wallis' Bram Goldsmith Theater. The Oscar, Emmy and Tony Award-winning actor reprises the title role of Pavlo Hummel, which he played in the original 1977 Broadway production, winning a Best Actor Tony Award. The Basic Training of Pavlo Hummel, the first in Rabe's acclaimed Vietnam War trilogy, follows a naive and directionless young man drafted into the U.S. Army. Alienated from his fellow soldiers and searching for meaning and status, the story of Hummel's life and military experiences unfold backwards after a fateful encounter in a Saigon brothel. Single tickets and VIP ticket packages, which include a post-performance cast reception and other benefits, are sold out, and a wait list is available.

A portion of the proceeds from the reading benefits the National Association of Veteran-Serving Organizations (NAVSO), the only national nonprofit exclusively focused on accelerating the access, impact, reach and capacity of individual veteran-serving organizations nationwide and improving the lives of veterans and military families, and The Shakespeare Center of Los Angeles' Veterans in Art program, a transitional training and employment initiative for chronically unemployed veterans enrolled in vocational rehabilitation programs in technical theatre. Strobe lights, explosions and lighting effects that simulate war conditions are featured in the performance.

The staged reading of The Basic Training of Pavlo Hummel is directed by Robert Allan Ackerman, a two-time Golden Globe and five-time Emmy Award nominee and veteran director of Broadway and London's West End. In addition to Pacino, the cast includes Joel Steingold (Ardell), Anzu Lawson (Yen/Mrs. Sorrentino), Rif Hutton (Sgt. Tower/Parham), Matthew Wolf (Kress/Mickey), Matt Nolan (Pierce/Sgt. Wall), Robert Baker (Parker/Brisbey) Darren Richardson (Corporal/Hinkle), Sheldon Donenberg (Jones/Grennel/Ryan), Karen Strassman (Mrs. Hummel), Chase Fein (Captain/Officer/Burns), Kazumi Aihara (Mamasan). Serving as the "Chorus" are Takuma Anzai, Toru Uchikado, Gavin Lee, Taishi Mizuno and Shin Shimizu.

Additionally, seven production interns from Shakespeare Center of Los Angeles' Veterans in Arts program are involved in the reading, gaining vital professional theater experience: Chad Rowlett, Technical Director Intern, US Navy Seabee Builder & Engineer E-6, 2000-2012; Kevin Lamb, Propsmaster Intern, US Army Infantry E-3, 2003-2005; Joe Casillas, Front of House Intern, Sgt. US Army 2002-2008; Darrell Morrison, Sound Board Operator Intern, US Marines, Infantry E-3, 2008-2012; Derek McGee, Production Management Intern, US Army Security Forces/Element Leader E-4, 1999-2004; Joshua Valdez, Costume Coordination Intern, US Air Force F-15 Crew Chief, 1993-1997.

"The Basic Training of Pavlo Hummel has great meaning for me," says Pacino. "The play was the first of its kind to explore the national trauma of Vietnam and has as much relevance today as it did 40 years ago. It's wonderful to be doing this masterwork of David Rabe's in this setting as a reading, especially because it will benefit such a great cause for our Veterans."

"Al Pacino has long been one of our most treasured and talented performers across stage and screen, and it is a distinct honor for The Wallis to partner with him and the Shakespeare Center of Los Angeles on this reading of David Rabe's powerful play," says The Wallis' Artistic Director Paul Crewes. "With his passion for theater combined with him revisiting his Tony Award-winning role, it will be a thrilling performance. We are delighted to welcome him into our growing home of local artists."

"We are thrilled that SCLA's Veterans in Art program, has inspired this collaboration on such a seminal play," says The Shakespeare Center of Los Angeles Artistic Director Ben Donenberg. "Al Pacino's recognition of this successful signature program shows the value of the training we offer, and the contributions of our veteran students to theatre, and to our community."

"The team at NAVSO is delighted to partner with Mr. Pacino, The Wallis, and the Shakespeare Center of Los Angeles as a tribute to our nation's veterans and their families," says Tim Farrell, CEO, NAVSO. "NAVSO is immersed in the greater Los Angeles area, in particular with deep planning and strategy on the county's Veteran Peer Access Network; a $33 million program that will encourage the most vulnerable in our nation's largest population of veterans to get the help they need, and will be replicable in many areas nationwide. We're privileged to be featured in this impactful platform with Mr. Pacino and our wonderful Southern California partners".

About Al Pacino

Al Pacino (Pavlo Hummel) is a unique and enduring figure in the world of American stage and film. He was born in East Harlem and grew up in New York City's South Bronx. He attended the famed School of Performing Arts until the age of 17, when he moved on to study acting first at the Herbert Berghof Studio (HB Studio) with teacher and coach Charles Laughton, and later, at the legendary Actors Studio with mentor Lee Strasberg. Between 1963 and 1969 he honed his craft working in numerous theatrical productions including William Saroyan's Hello Out There for his off-Broadway debut in 1963; Why is a Crooked Letter in 1966, for which he won an off-Broadway Obie Award; The Indian Wants the Bronx, that earned him another Obie Award as best actor of the 1967-68 season; and Does a Tiger Wear a Necktie? for his Broadway debut and first Tony Award in 1969. Pacino continued appearing onstage in the 1970s, receiving a second Tony Award for The Basic Training of Pavlo Hummel and performing the title role in Shakespeare's Richard III. In the 1980s, he again achieved critical success on the stage while appearing in David Mamet's American Buffalo. Since 1990, Pacino's stage work has included revivals of Eugene O'Neill's Hughie, Oscar Wilde's Salome and Lyle Kessler's Orphans. In 2011, he portrayed Shylock in The Merchant of Venice on Broadway, garnering a Tony Award nomination for Best Leading Actor in a Play and, in 2013, appeared on Broadway playing Shelley Levine in David Mamet's Glengarry Glen Ross. His first leading part in a feature film was in the 1971 drama Panic in Needle Park, and the following year Francis Ford Coppola selected him to take on the breakthrough role of Michael Corleone in The Godfather. He was nominated for an Academy Award for his work on The Godfather and, within the next six years, he received another four Academy Award nominations for the films Serpico, The Godfather Part II, Dog Day Afternoon and ...And Justice For All. A long and rich film career has followed with over 45 titles including Scarface, Sea of Love, The Insider, Donnie Brasco, Heat (where he shared the screen for the first time with fellow film icon Robert DeNiro) and Any Given Sunday. He garnered additional Academy award nominations for his performances in Dick Tracy and Glengarry Glen Ross. His role as Colonel Frank Slade in Scent of a Woman won him the Academy Award for Best Actor in 1992. He played Shylock in Michael Radford's film adaptation of The Merchant of Venice. He directed and stars in the films Looking For Richard and Chinese Coffee. His television work includes a rich relationship with HBO first as Roy Cohn in the 2003 miniseries Angels in America and as Dr. Jack Kevorkian in You Don't Know Jack in 2010, both of which garnered Golden Globes and Emmy Awards for his performances. In 2013, he won Golden Globe and Emmy nominations for the title role in David Mamet's film Phil Spector. Pacino recently directed the films Salome and Wilde Salome, in which he stars as King Herod with Jessica Chastain as Salome. Wilde Salome received its world premiere at the Venice International Film Festival. Most recently, Pacino can currently be seen as true-life teamster in an Oscar-nominated performance as Jimmy Hoffa in Martin Scorsese's The Irishman, starring alongside Robert De Niro and Joe Pesci. The Irishman is an adaptation of the 2004 memoir I Heard You Paint Houses by Charles Brandt and follows organized crime in postwar American, as told by the infamous hitman Frank Sheeran (De Niro). Pacino can next be seen in Amazon Prime Video's highly-anticipated series Hunters. Pacino has been awarded the Golden Globe Cecil B. DeMille Award for Lifetime Achievement in Motion Pictures, the American Film Institute Life Achievement Award and in 2011 he was received the National Merit of Arts from President Obama. He received the Kennedy Center Honor in 2016.

Joel Steingold (Ardell), born in Detroit Michigan, was raised in the most atypical of circumstances. Parented by a single mother, and he was simultaneously educated in a Hebrew school in the suburbs and Detroit public schools in the city. Steingold soon learned that through the power of comedy, drama and performance, he would find a way to make these two worlds connect. What started off as telling jokes and imitating people, evolved into a love of being in the spotlight and entertaining those around him. Steingold studied for two years at the North Carolina School of The Arts in Winston-Salem, N.C., and graduated from Wayne State University with a BFA in Theatre. While in college, he spent his summers interning and working at MTV and Nickelodeon to get a well-rounded understanding of how entertainment is brought to the masses. In 2001, Steingold moved to LA to focus on a career that has included commercials, hosting, voice overs, print work and several television roles. He can be seen in the upcoming season of Showtime's The Chi as Marcus St. John. Being creatively diverse has become a major asset that allows him to share his talent of acting and performing through different mediums.

Continuing to see the lack of Asian stories in Hollywood, Lawson received her certificate in screenwriting from UCLA in 2010 and has been focused on bringing to light the untold stories of Asian American and diverse women throughout history. For her passion project, DEARJOHNWHYYOKOMUSICAL.com, an original 28-song musical, in 2014, Lawson garnered her first Hollywood Fringe Festival Best Actress nomination for her portrayal as Yoko Ono. Recently, Lawson has been selling out every Los Angeles performance of her one-woman show DEARYOKO.com, which is an official selection of the 2019 BFF FESTIVAL and SOLOFEST 2020.
